I am a founding member of our Associate Team. I started working in legal recruitment in 2005 when I joined my LTN colleague Andrew Smallwood at a leading consultancy. My passion is working with people and the fast-paced nature of recruitment. When advising associates I encourage them to take a long-term view and plan strategic career moves at the right time for them.

In addition to recruitment, I have been fortunate enough to spend part of my career in the world of sports management which means I am able to draw on a wide range of valuable learnings and experiences outside of my current focus, to benefit both clients and candidates.

Outside LTN, I am married with three children, love sport, and often somehow find myself watching trashy reality TV – I blame my wife.
