As Senior Researcher, I provide thorough candidate, client, and market research to all teams in the business. In particular, I work with the Consultancy team on client projects such as strategic business plans, law firm start-ups and practice area build outs.

I enjoy researching and analysing trends in the legal market and have developed a keen commercial awareness when it comes to the intricacies of various legal practices and jurisdictions.

I also enjoy working on internal business development, operations, and pro-bono projects and I am the main point of contact for LTN's Intern and Work Experience programmes.

I am originally from Manchester but have lived and worked in London since 2016. I joined LTN in March 2020 post a stint at an executive search firm in Wimbledon while completing my master's degree in The History of Political Thought and Intellectual History at UCL.

Outside of work, my interest in history means I can often be found (usually in the giftshop) of the many great museums and galleries in London.
