I have worked in relationship marketing for over 30 years, specifically in the professional services sector. Most recently I was Director of Marketing & Communications at a large US firm, building and managing a team for their new office in London. I have worked extensively in Europe, Asia and the US and I specialise in high-end event management, communications, and the set-up of new businesses. Working with management to open offices and build teams from scratch – concentrating on brand development and internal communications. I am result focussed and a safe pair of hands to get things done!

Outside of work, I am an avid sports fan and follow Wasps Rugby. I also spend way too much time in restaurants and bars – which I pretend is research for work.
